DEDICATION

James I. Armstrong

Because in one short year he has won our admiration and respect and given our lives greater meaning by his high ideals and dynamic personality,

Because his clear foresight and sincere concern have taught us to value the present and plan for the future,

Because his firm sense of justice and uncompromising standards have created a new pride in Middlebury,

Because his presence makes us aware of our shortcomings and his confidence makes us strive to use our best abilities,

Because we see in him all we want to be, and because he is already one of us,

We dedicate this book to President James I. Armstrong.

I have had a few responses to the Healy painting "inventory" but surely there are more "collectors" out there. Maybe its only us old folks from the '60's who have them and not enough of us are on the internet. I know one luddite in Shelburne who barely tolerates this medium has a painting or two, so I suspect he is the norm.

Does anyone know whether it is still possible to buy one? Does the college have a decent collection of them and does any other college or school? So, now maybe it is time to exchange AKDH stories; is it possible to paint watercolors without smoking Gaulloises? Anyone have a good picture of him? There is the classic one in the yearbook of '64 or '65 of him in the coffee shop of the cafeteria, the everpresent Gaulloise (spelling is off I know...)...my brand of choice for a time before quitting completely in 1985. Two or three a day was all I could handle, but they were great..

STUDENT LIFE

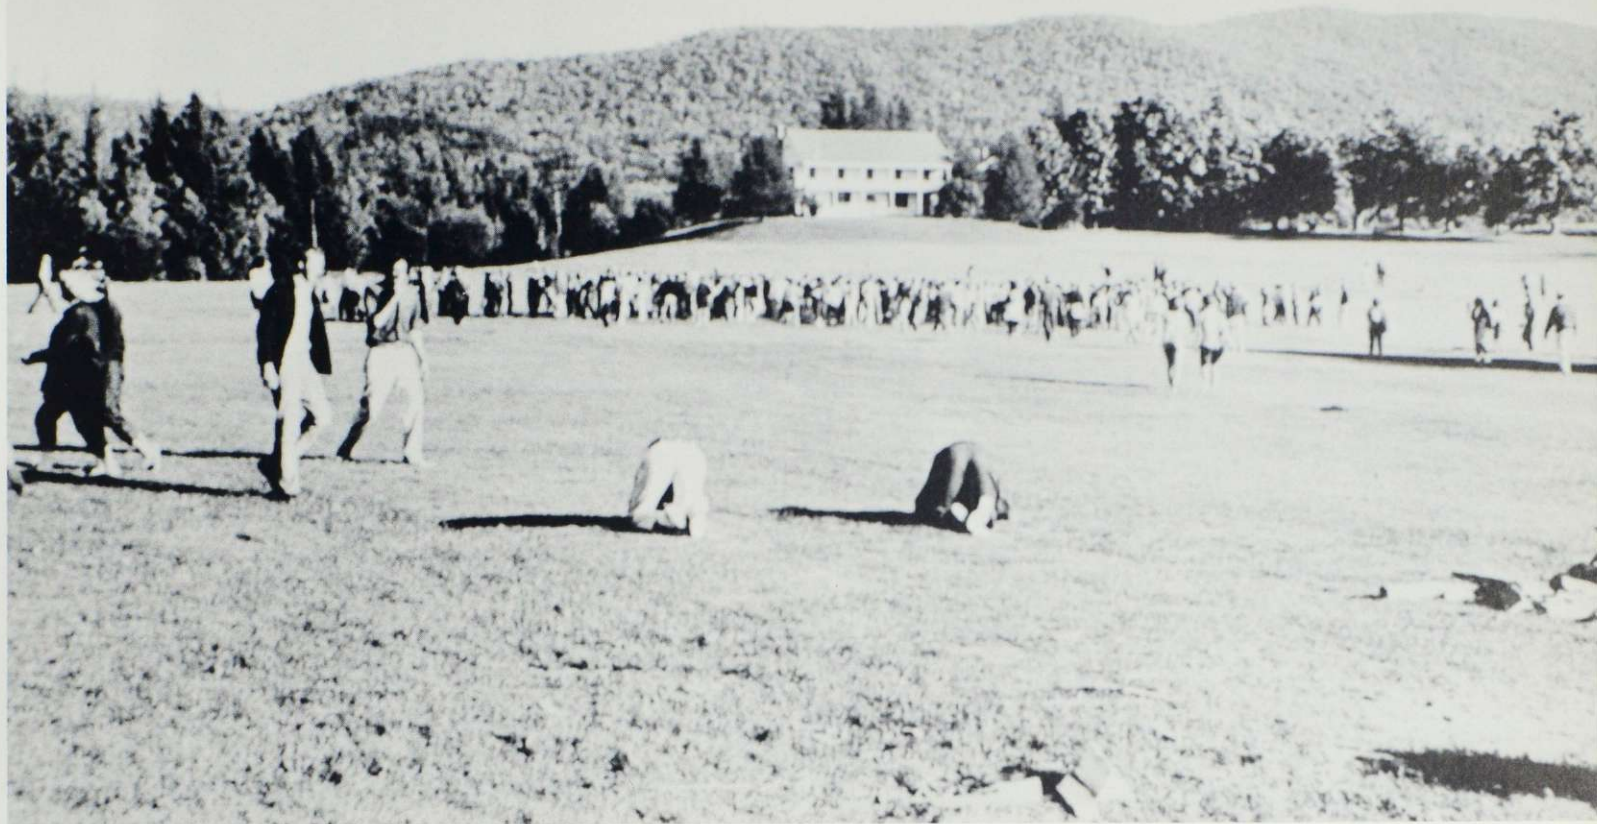

Here it all begins—as anxious freshmen and self-assured upperclassmen alike descend upon the provincial calm that is Middlebury. We stop to look about us, attempting to gain a true perspective of what we can do for Middlebury, what it can do for us.

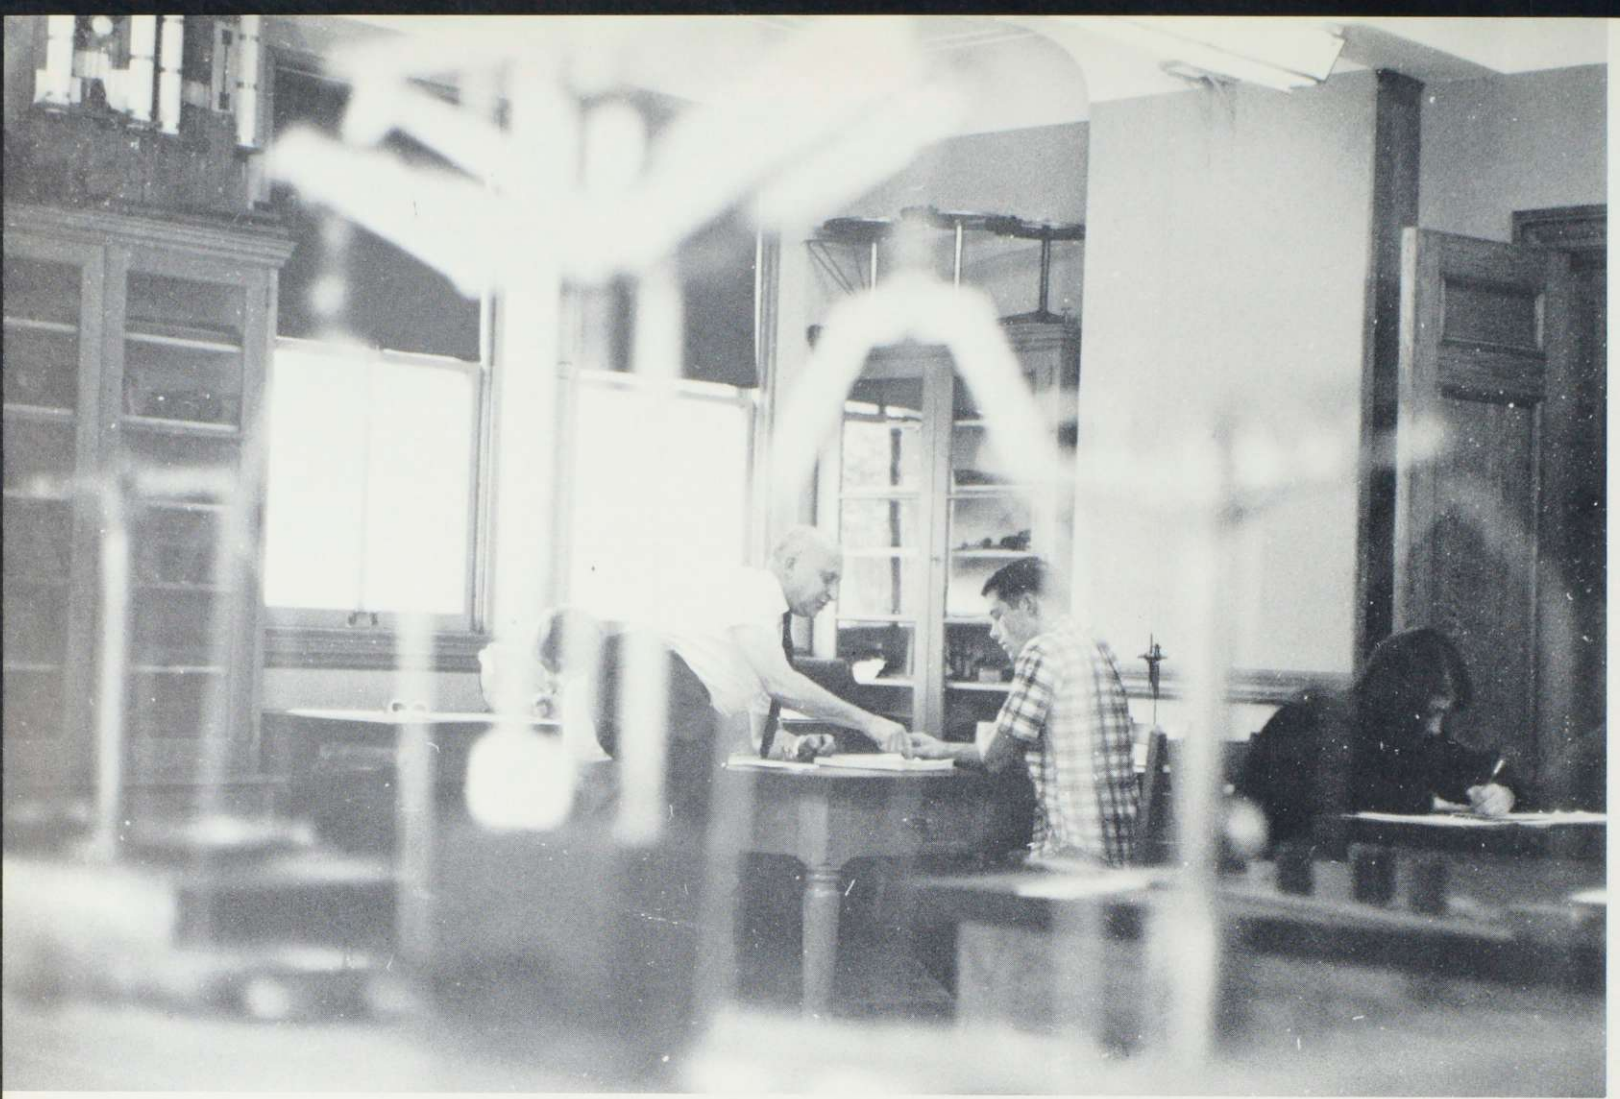

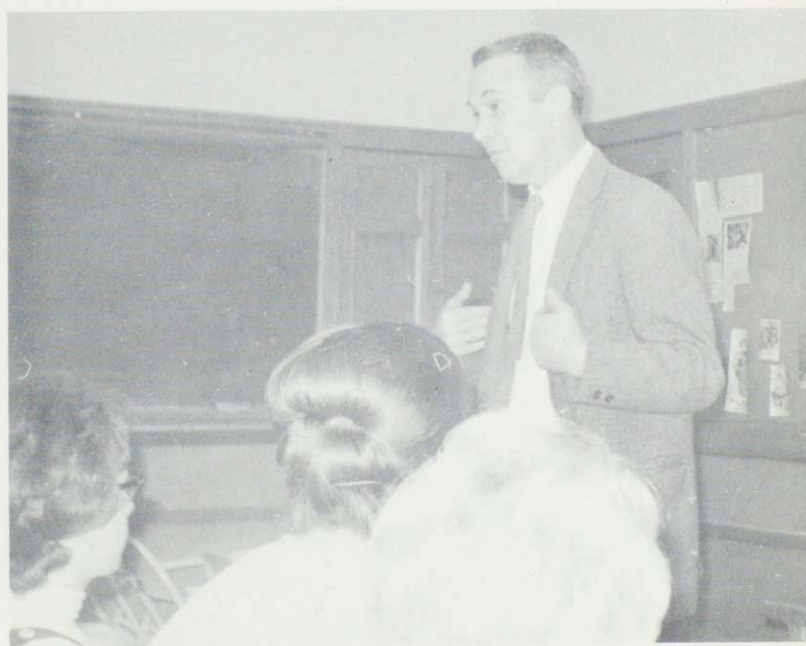

Freshman Week is an introduction, at first stilted and awkward. With time, though, comes an uneasy acceptance of Middlebury and of each other. Gradually we become a part of Midd tradition, no longer just a freshman, but an integral member of the college community.

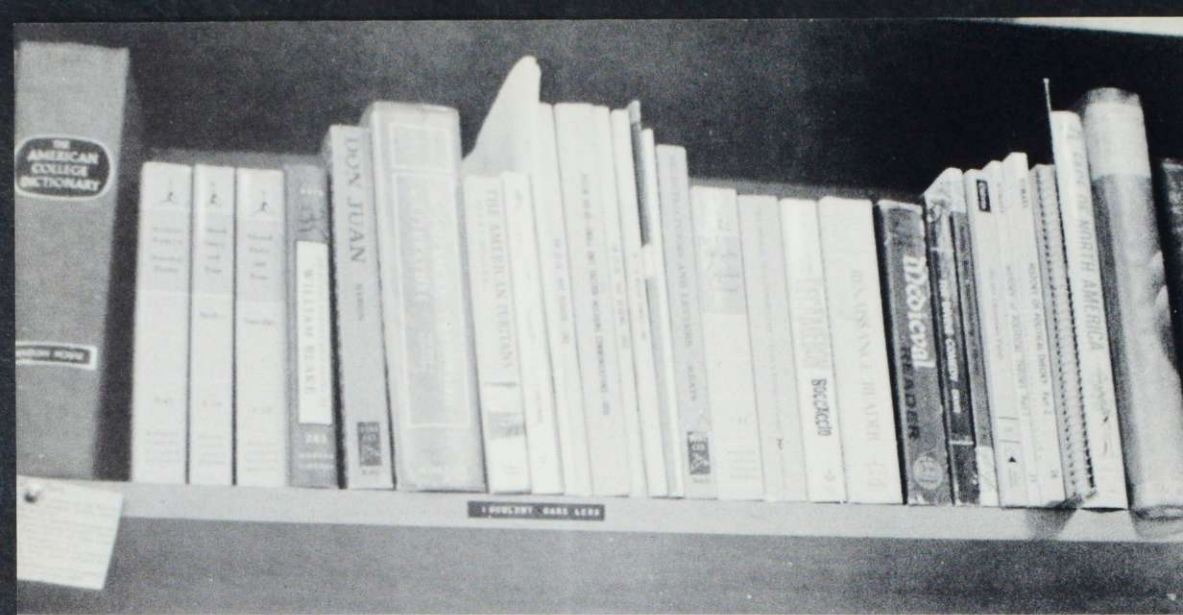

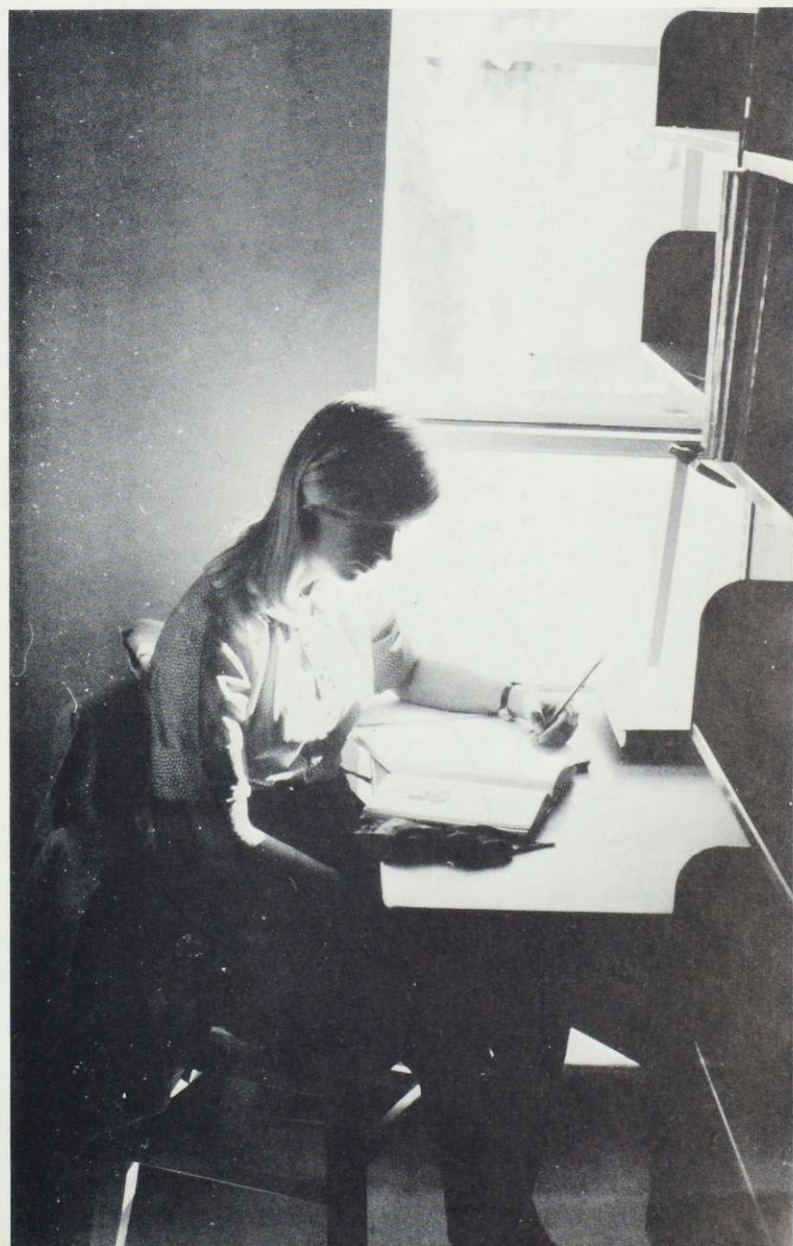

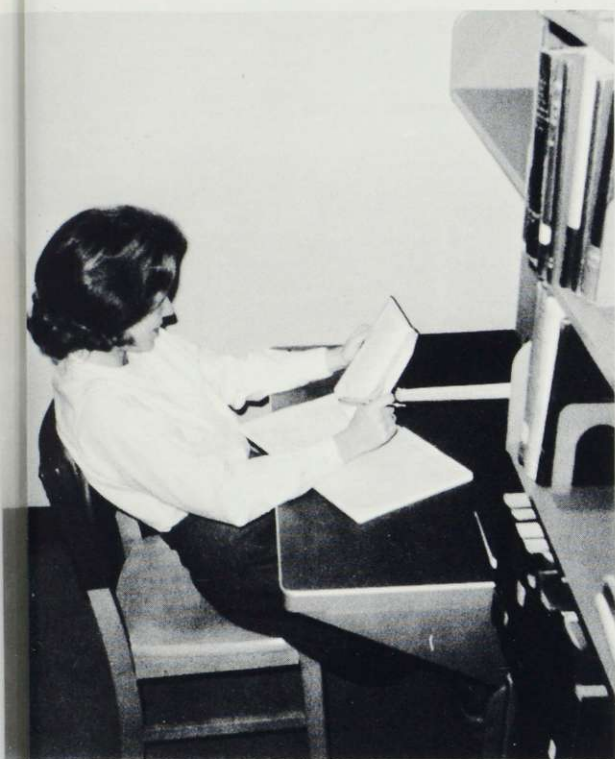

It is in the classroom that our thoughts are formed and our ideas born. Here, too, we experience our greatest sense of achievement and our deepest depression. Within this aggregate, we find ourselves by finding others and through a process of searching discover our ultimate goals.

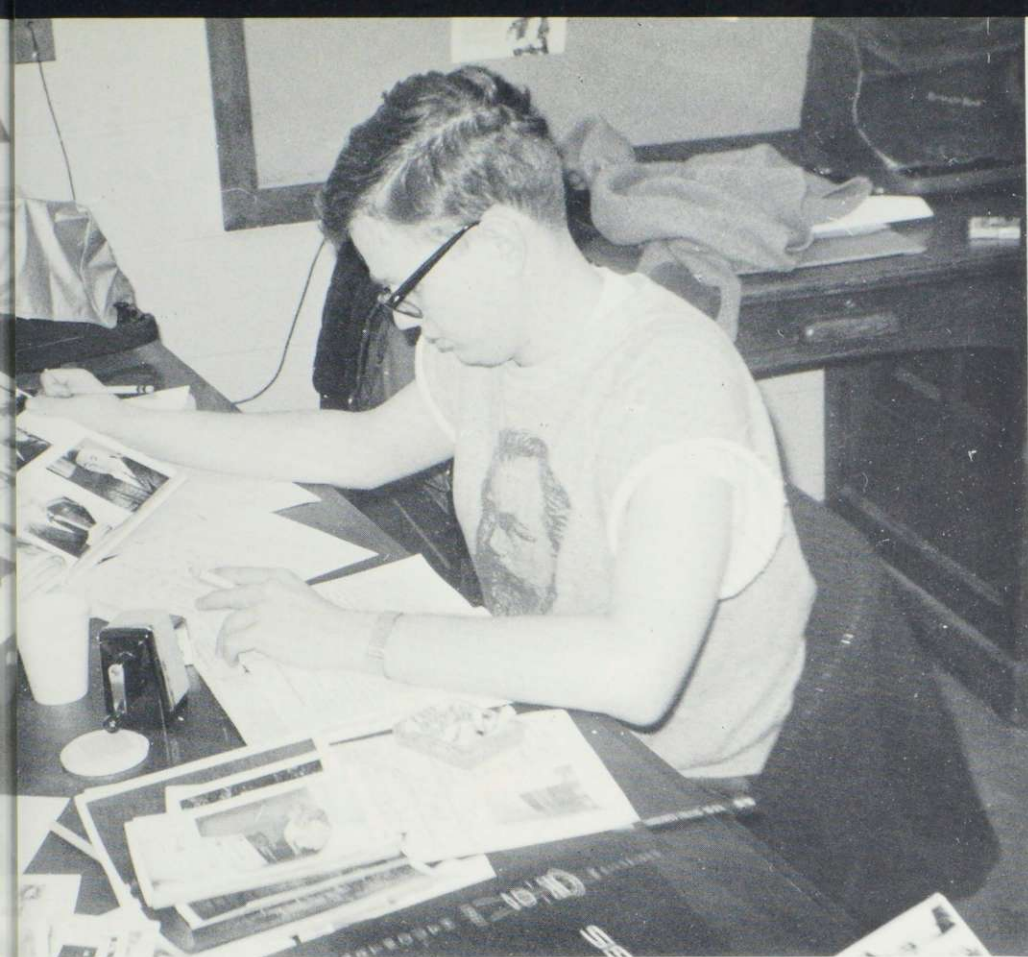

In the library we ask our questions—upon finding the answers we are faced with greater questions which demand, in turn, more comprehensive answers. As the academic day ends, we leave our secluded desk, secure in the knowledge that we will come again to read and search and ask.

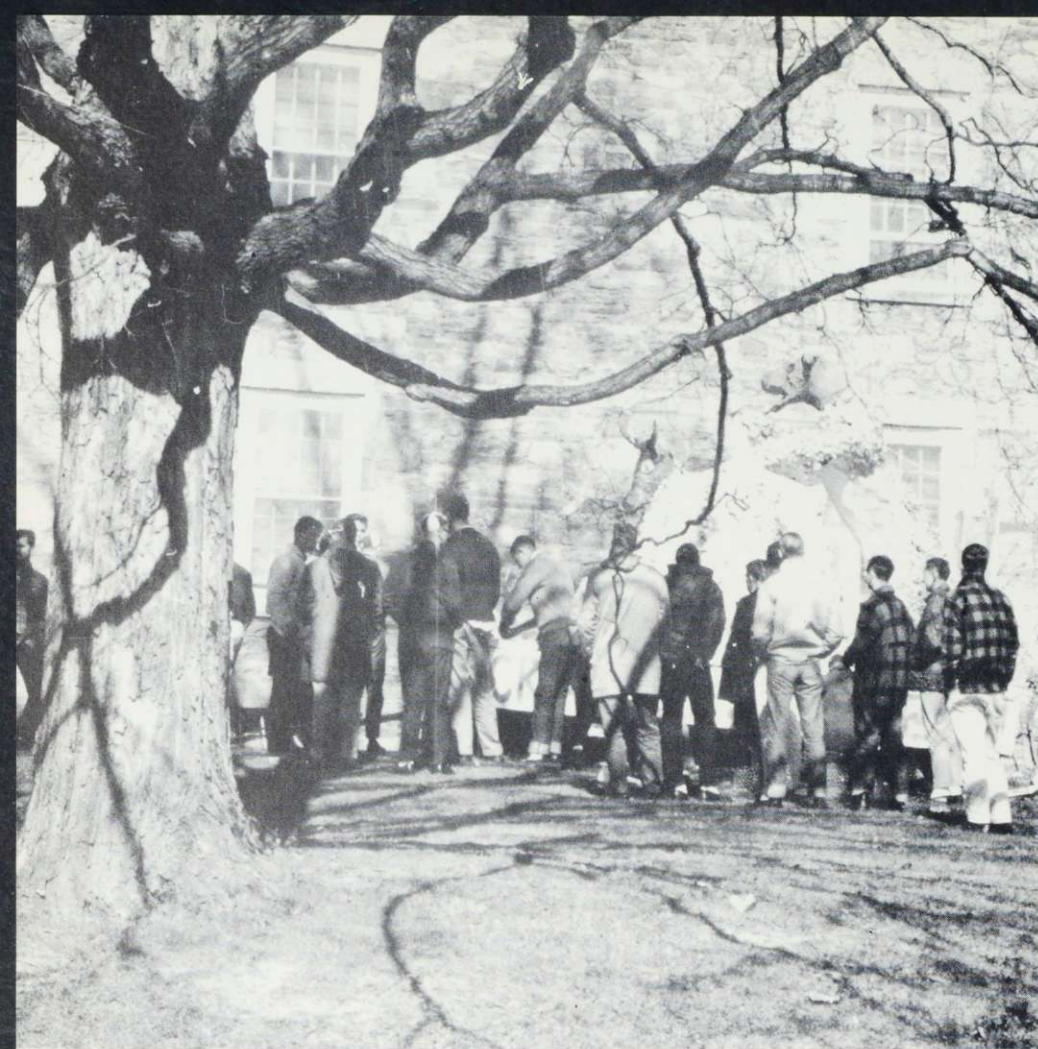

Because we are many, our interests are many, and because we are one, these interests fuse and take shape as we pursue them together. We write, broadcast, build and create—and from it all comes a pattern of common aspiration, an organization.

Homecoming—when we try to match the alums' frantic spirit, when the upperclassmen realize that they can't quite remember the words to the cheers, and when the freshmen throw off their demoralizing beanies. A "high" point of the fall, both on the field and off

Dorm life means being together. Whether going through the mechanical motions of a 7 A.M. breakfast, ironing a shirt to the music of your roommate's hi-fi, making the trek to Foley's for the entire corridor, or spending an evening in cooperative study, it's a process of sharing.

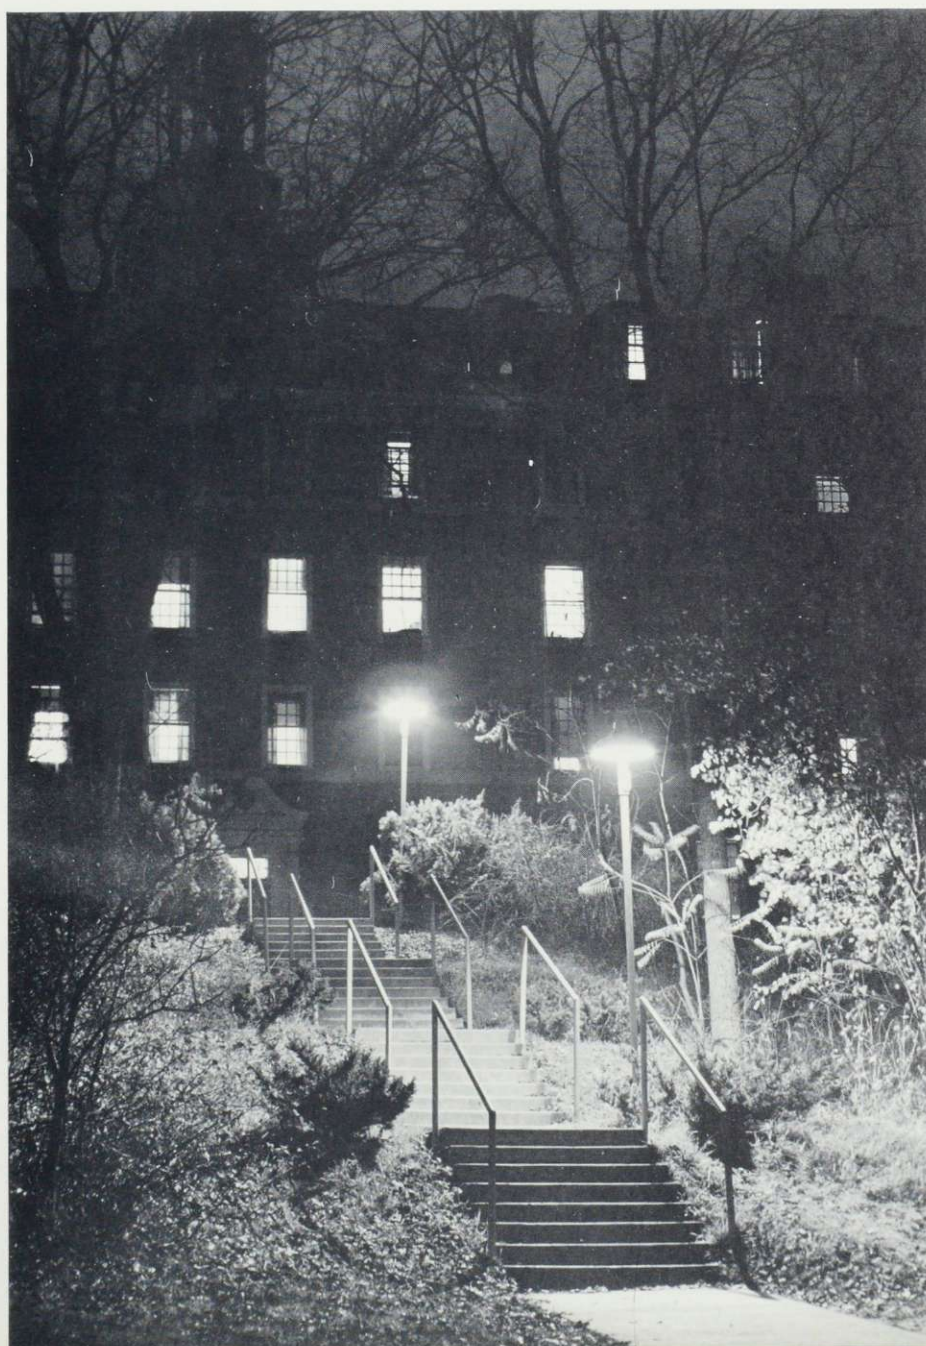

Dorm life is Middlebury's prescription for depression—and it works. Laughing together is better than an aspirin, and every care seems lighter with someone nearby to listen. Even while enjoying a moment alone, we are secure in the knowledge of friends close at hand.

Sometimes a stillness asserts itself and we find ourselves alone. For some of us this calm offers an opportunity for realization through reflection, while for others it is a chance to catch up on some well-earned sleep. But for all of us, it's a welcome part of any day.

As the weeks pass, our lives fall into a comfortable pattern—the classroom, the dorm and Proctor forming the nucleus of our existence. In the midst of our routine comes a worthwhile event to interrupt the ordinary and bring us outside of ourselves.

With the first snowfall the Christmas spirit arrives at Middlebury. Gaily bedecked trees appear in dorm, house and Crest Room as holiday cheer echoes over the white campus. We join in the merriment, knowing that our long-awaited vacation will soon become a pleasant reality.

The new year brings with it the exhilaration of a day at the Bowl—and the realization that exams are just around the corner. We ski, study, then ski some more, knowing that if the hazards of exams fail to trip us, we may fall prey to those of the slopes. But we take our chances—and love it.

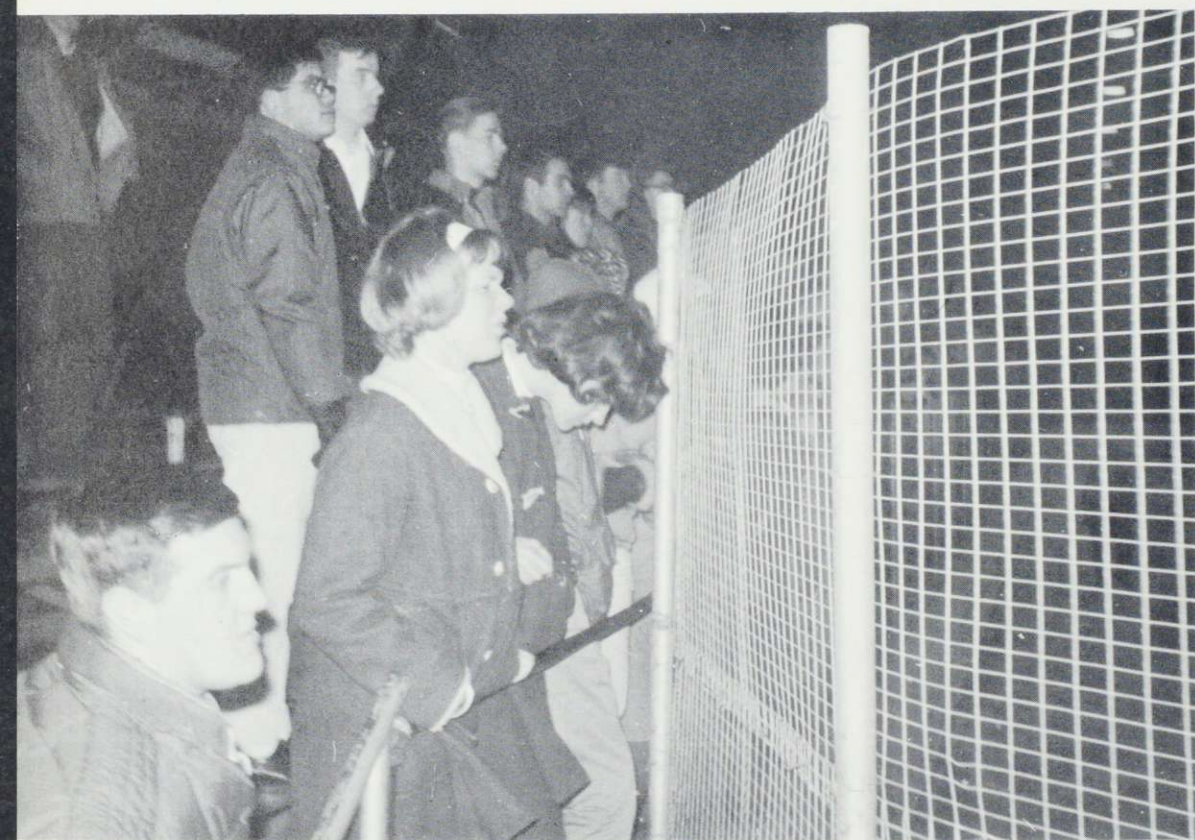

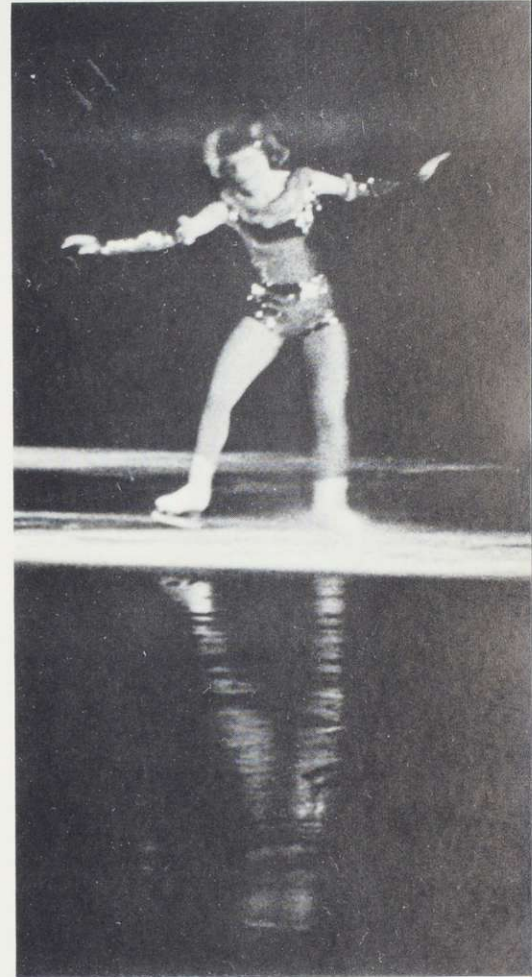

A pile of snow undergoes an artistic transformation—and Carnival arrives at Middlebury. As days of relentless planning fade miraculously into the background, the coronation of Carnival's king and queen signals the official commencement of our mid-winter festivities.

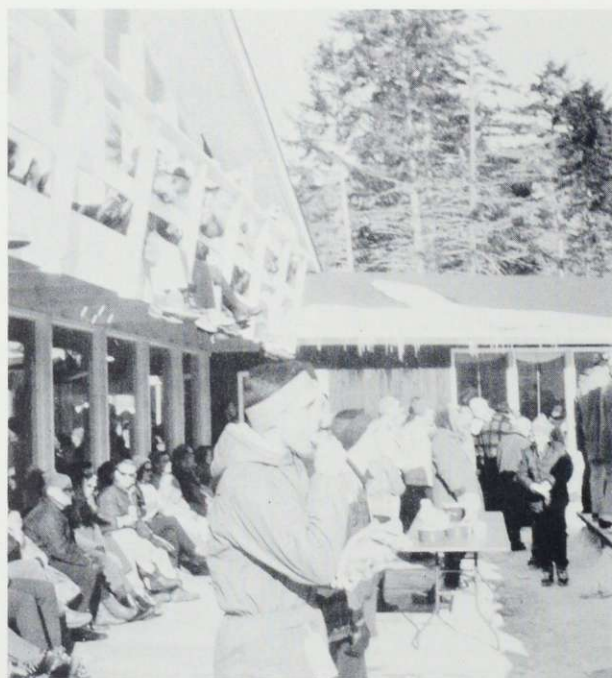

Carnival means many things to many people—the frosty glitter of the Ice Show, the dramatic tension of the hockey game, the glamour of Carnival Ball, and the relaxing informality of Klondike Rush. It's a time for carefree living, for letting our hair down . . .

But most of all, Carnival means sunny days at the Bowl, for it is here amidst the expectant crowds that the essence of Carnival spirit comes to the fore. As the talented skiers exhibit their prowess on the slopes, we gather in a cheering throng to encourage our team to a well-deserved victory.

When life on the hill threatens to envelop us, we seek our relief in the village of Middlebury. So close yet so far from academic pressures, we observe and are observed. Often we complain of confinement—but perhaps we are merely failing to open our eyes to what is around us.

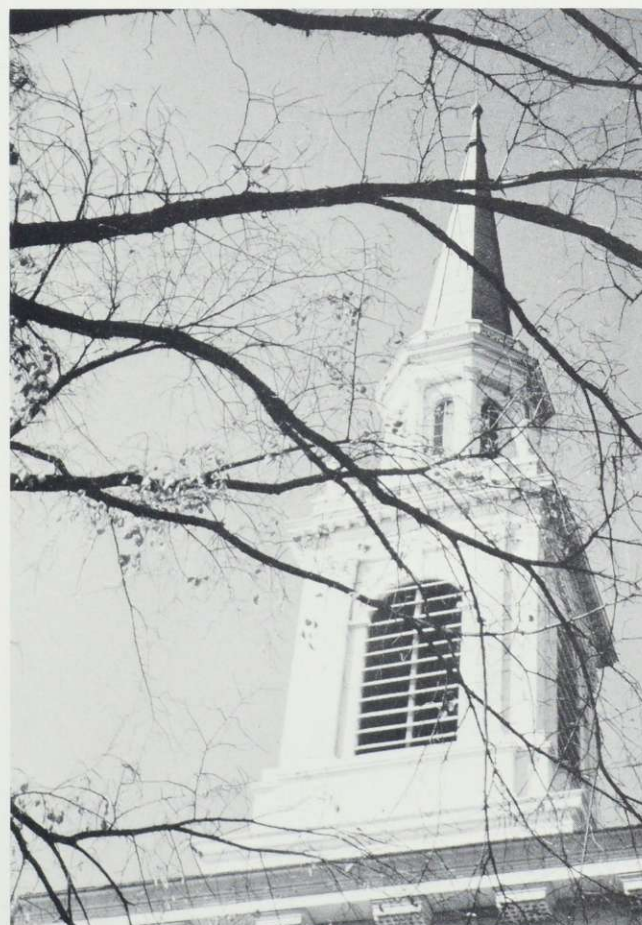

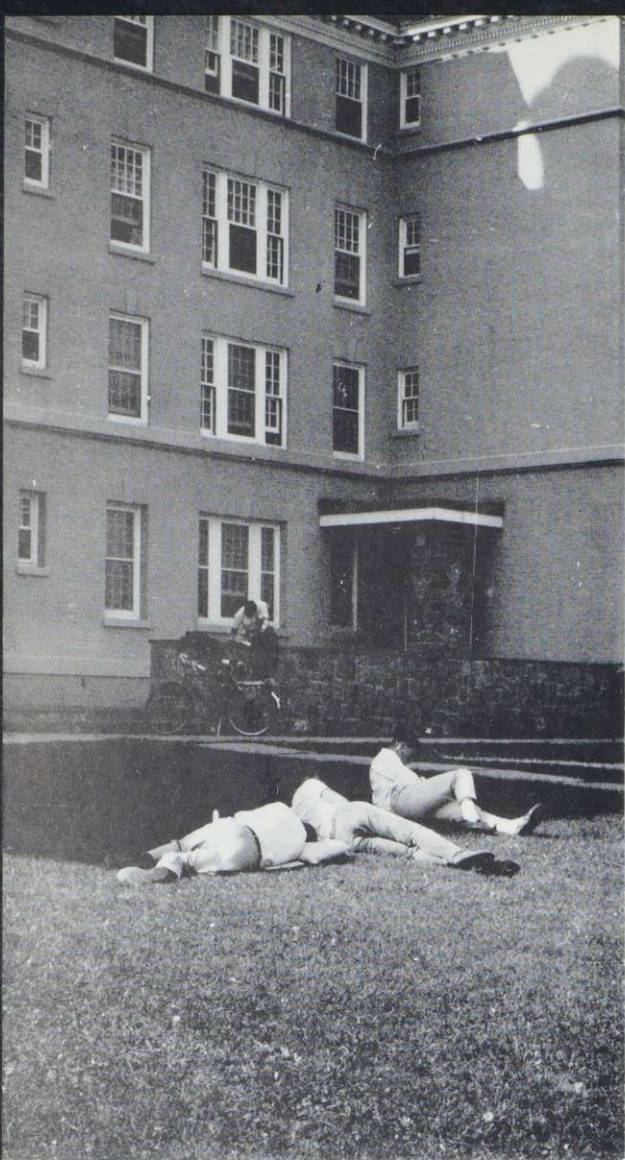

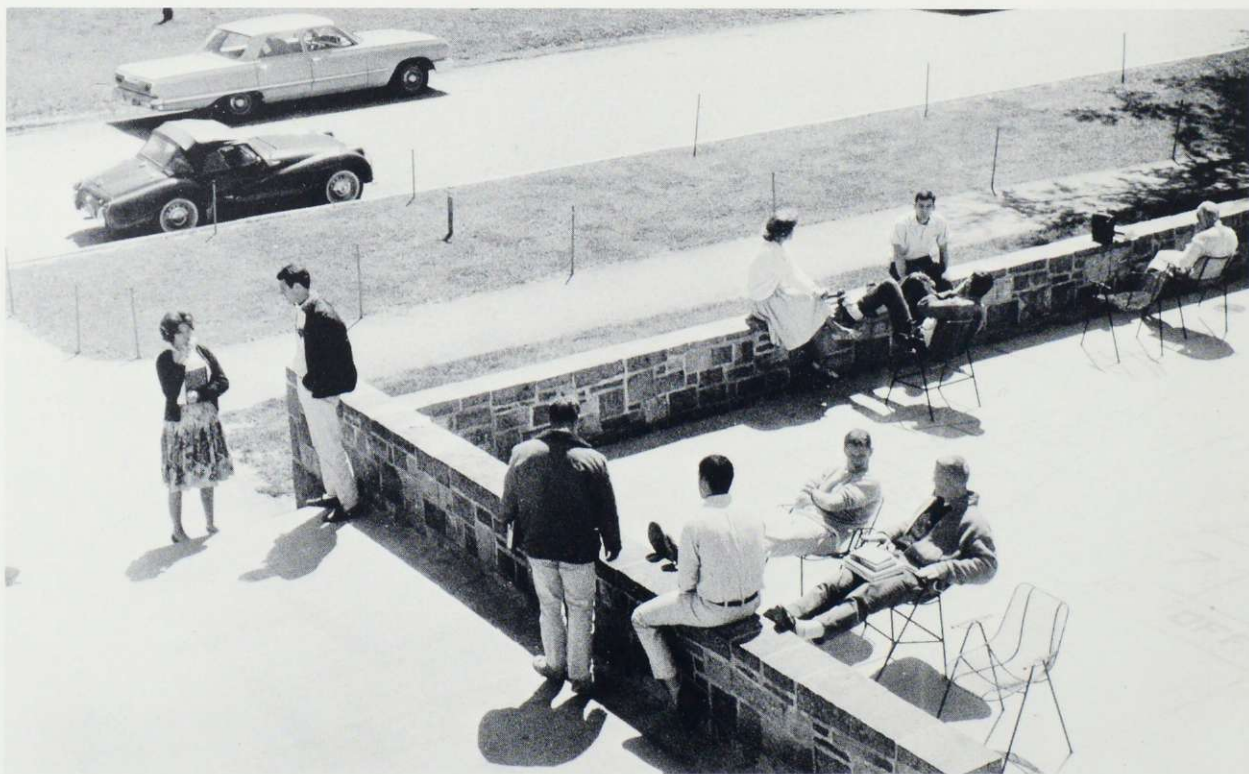

Just when we least expect it, the snow disappears and leaves begin to show themselves on barren trees. The campus takes on the air of spring, as raccoon coats and snow boots give way to sweaters and sneakers. We gravitate to the out-of-doors, still wondering if winter has bid us its final goodbye.

As the days grow warmer and the campus greener, the bleakness of winter becomes but a memory. Proctor terrace usurps the Crest Room's popularity; Lake Dunmore becomes the favorite spot for an afternoon of relaxation. Spring encompasses Middlebury and the end looms close at hand.

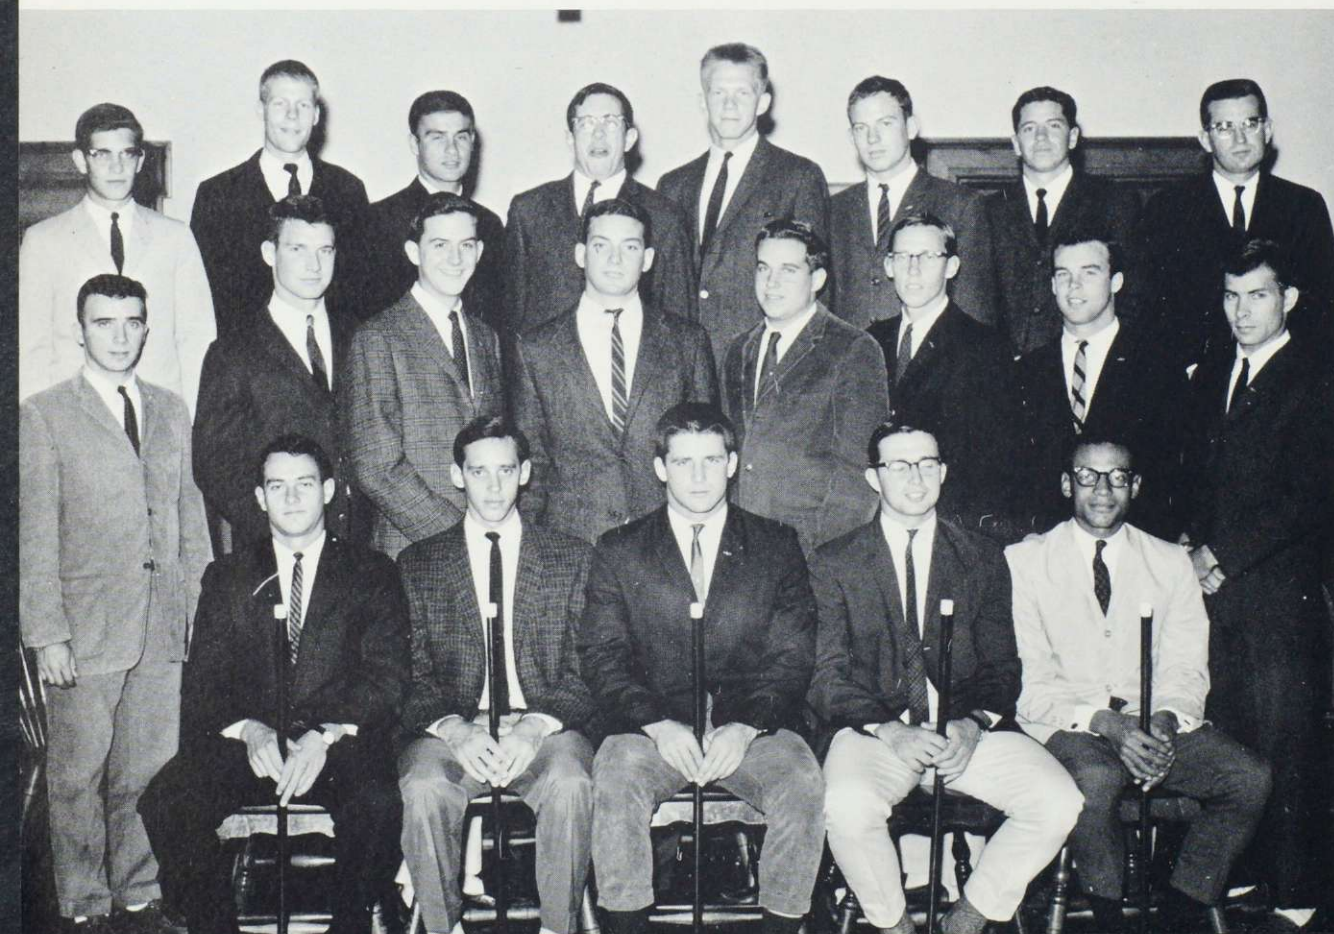

ACTIVITIES

MORTAR BOARD—Front Row: J. Waller (President). Row Two: M. Lam, K. Swanson, D. Crehan, S. Hanson, J. Arnold, L. Webster.

Both individually as leaders in academic and extracurricular groups on campus, and collectively as honor societies, the members of Blue Key, Waubanakee, and Mortar Board attempt to translate into action and specific attitudes the ideals of leadership, scholarship and service.

Serving at freshman orientation, sporting events, and Inauguration, the three organizations have adapted their programs to fill in the margins between subject-oriented groups on campus. With the spirit of service as a guide, their leadership and sportsmanship have epitomized worthwhile personal experience, their scholarship has found a context, and their dedication has found meaning in the traditions and life of a liberal arts college.

For some Middlebury students excellence, impressive feats and consistent accomplishment are commonplace. Theirs are fulfilled aspirations, a record of academic excellence, an undertow of ambition that never slackens, and a striving for new intellectual horizons. Admired, respected and emulated—this is Phi Beta Kappa at Middlebury.

With pride in our accomplishments and with realization of individual needs, we share our knowledge of Middlebury with those who hope to follow us.

J.C.'s can be handy people to have around. They are veritable storehouses of information on Middlebury life: its fashions ("Do I have to wear heels to this lecture?"), its men ("Do you have a Sophomore New Faces?"), and its academics ("How do you interpret this line?"). They also abound in knitting patterns, aspirin, and advice stemming from two whole years' standing as Middlebury women.

Functioning as policeman, Dean of Men, philosopher and friend, the Junior Fellow fits the freshman image of the omniscient and omnipotent upperclassman. The Junior Fellow's position is one of pleasure and responsibility. It represents not only a reliving of the first problem-filled year of college and a chance to help others avoid the mistakes he has made, but also an opportunity to develop himself by serving others.

MEN'S JUDICIAL COUNCIL—R. McLean, R. Ide, M. Heaney (Chief Justice), A. Dewart, R. Maine.

Occupying a coveted position in the sphere of campus organizations, the Student Association maintains its progressive nature by continually seeking new methods of improving student government at Middlebury. The proposed revision of SA electoral procedures characterizes this progressiveness, while consideration of a new, satisfactory honor code and the evaluation of all club constitutions illustrate the diversity and the complexity of issues dealt with annually by the SA.

Working closely with the SA are the Men's and Women's Judiciary Councils. Interpretation of the college regulations in a variety of situations is the foremost task of these councils; this year, both groups have concentrated on an updating of such rules. For each member, the functioning of the councils affords an invaluable experience in human relations as well as a lesson in practical application of American judicial theory.

WOMEN'S JUDICIAL COUNCIL—Front Row: A. Messick, K. Swanson (Chief Justice), J. Gear. Row Two: J. Arnold, V. Neely, C. Breckenridge, E. Fink.

The Student Life Committee, made up of student leaders and representatives of the faculty and administration, is an organization whose primary goal is to promote the coordination of the academic community. The Committee, under the chairmanship of President Armstrong, has considered, discussed, and acted upon women's legislation, the Social Code, and constitutions of recognized undergraduate organizations. As the only formal channel for communication between the administration and the student body, Student Life acts as a forum for discussion of ideas often leading to the inauguration of new policies.

The Student Educational Policy Committee (SEPC) functions as a central channel through which student opinion on academic policy is recognized and passed on to the faculty. The Committee this year has been concerned chiefly with strengthening its position as a significant force on the Middlebury campus, through which students might intelligently speak and be heard. This strength is the product of student interest and support and has gathered momentum through activities such as an evaluation of Independent Study programs and the investigation of a pre-examination reading period.

SEPC—F. Moreland (Chairman), C. Telfair, D. Crehan, L. Geisen, G. Hunt, J. Buttolph. Not Pictured: T. Colvin, E. Sprenger.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS: R. Coutts, B. Gunther, P. Glenn, C. Hoffman, M. Lam (Vice-President), J. McCormack (President), C. Tarbox, J. Sprigman, S. Gillespie.

Not content to rest on past laurels, the Board of Governors once again this year has competently filled a necessary position on the Middlebury campus. Sponsoring programs such as the Celebrity Series, Career Weekend, Four Saturday Nights of Folk, as well as various single events such as dances and hayrides, the Board has kept the social schedule full for both freshmen and upperclassmen. In addition, the Board's six committees have provided outlets for the boundless energy of Middlebury students.

Hail to the queen!

Oh, to be anemic . . .

Girl Scout leaders, piano teachers, party givers, and salesgirls—these are the versatile members of Middlebury's Women's Forum. Working to promote a strong town-gown relationship, Forum's numerous committees are never idle in their philanthropic labors. A benefit to village and college communities alike, the members reap a dual reward; not only do they sense pride in their accomplishments, but they thoroughly enjoy themselves as well.

WOMEN'S FORUM BOARD—Front Row: R. Friedlander, M. Tuttle, L. Gulick, J. Pollard, A. Goldschmidt, V. Fox. Row Two: J. Arnold, J. Volkert (Vice-President), B. Bailey (President), D. Donaker. Think I should forward to the "Times"?

Newspapers serve a community as a medium for the exchange of facts and opinion, for the analysis of current situations in the light of past events and future possibilities, and for the stimulation of discussion and action on vital subjects. Since 1905, THE CAMPUS has attempted to fulfill this role at Middlebury. It is also a laboratory in journalism, educating its staff and editors in the art of uncovering and selecting pertinent material, and in the use of discretion and responsible leadership.

KALEID staff members are busy people—in this hustle and bustle which is Middlebury, we often have a hard time slowing the pace down sufficiently so that we may get it into print.

For that is what we want to do—synthesize the essence of our college year into 200 pages of life and motion. We put the yearbook together, giving our existence some kind of focus; but you have made KALEIDOSCOPE what it is.

This erases, doesn't it?

Language clubs at Middlebury provide a chance for everyone who has a real interest in the country and language he studies to use his adopted tongue creatively and informally, as is not always possible in the classroom, and to learn about the land and culture. Success depends chiefly on the enthusiasm of the group, and activities can range from learning German folk dances and singing French Christmas carols to cooking Spanish delicacies and producing Russian plays. Work and fun go hand in hand, giving the student a welcome boost in his attempt at mastering another language.

Keeping pace with the growing national interest in the art of film making, "Cinema" has expanded its third annual program to 18 films, and its membership to 140 students. The 1963-64 series included among its classics "The Red Balloon," "The Little Fugitive," "Roshomon," and "Potemkin." Also reflecting the increased interest in this art was the festival of Bergman films sponsored by "Cinema" for the entire campus.

"A man's reach must exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for?" Here at Middlebury, You have not even been reaching. You have, perhaps, been briefly stagnant—slowed and unwound. But now we feel somehow that the pendulum is swinging through for a deeper-ranging interest in creative literature on this campus. And sensing this, we of FRONTIERS are hopeful...

The theatre is a complex yet ordered microcosm in which we find relief from the worries of the world. It may seem false, but to us it is very real. We work hard because we care, showing sides of ourselves that would otherwise remain hidden.

There is vitality, interest, a sense of working together to accomplish a task and to do it well. It takes time and energy, but we love every minute and cherish every memory.

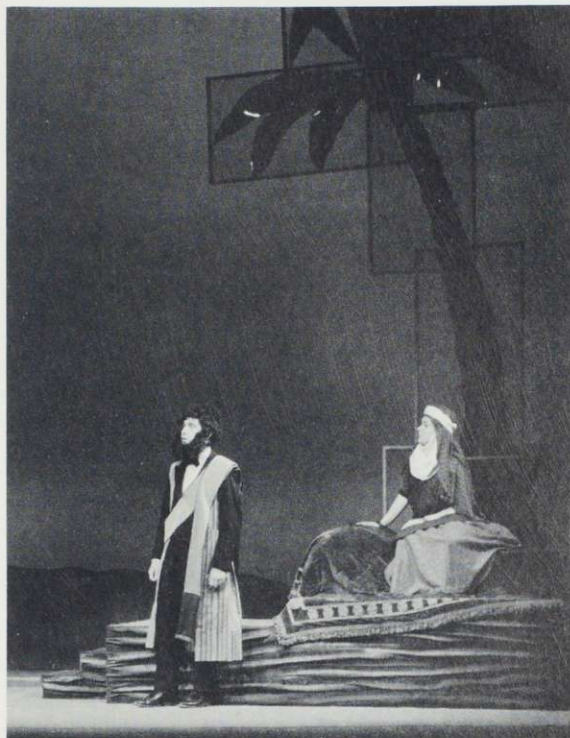

We learn to interpret lines, to paint a set, to "feel" the part and to design the lighting. We learn much and are better as a result.

The chamber-group quality of the orchestra is the lure that draws many an aspiring musician to pleasant hours of rehearsal in the music studio. In such a group, not only is the individual's virtuosity important, but also his flexibility and ability to blend with the whole. With this in mind, we strive each day toward a more perfect ensemble.

What is Mountain Club? For freshmen, it's the excitement of Freshman Outing, the first exhilarating tastes of Vermont's colorful falls and snowbound winters. For sophomores, it's the pride of becoming a Skyline member, and the dutiful acceptance of the work that comes with this honor. For junior and senior Skyliners, it's the organization and execution of hikes, canoe trips, Woodsmen's Weekend, and above all Carnival—and the satisfaction of seeing a job well-done. For everyone, then, Mountain Club is a welcome diversion, a refreshing escape from the academic routine.

College students ARE interested in issues of local, national and international importance and DO have valuable opinions on these matters. A camera, imagination, and interest—these are the simple requirements for membership in the Photography Club. This group offers an opportunity for people with similar interests to combine ideas, talents, and resources. The final results, whether exciting or exasperating, aid in our seeing, experiencing, and gaining insight into the world we occupy.

For novice and experienced speakers as well, the Middlebury Debate Club offers “loquacious” students the chance to employ their talents in a meaningful way. Imbued with kindred team spirit, the group competes annually in numerous tournaments throughout the East, testing their knowledge and competence at every step along the way. At the Niagara Tournament especially, their efforts were rewarded, a fitting tribute to their teamwork and dedication.

Both students and faculty explored the relationship between existentialism and faith with Dr. Carl Michalson of Drew University during a highly stimulating and successful three day conference.

Out of the bleak gray daze of February, Middlebury's colorful Winter Carnival suddenly erupts. Its appearance is not completely unexpected, however; student committees, working months in advance, have obtained big-name entertainment and top-notch skiing competition. Two days of snow-sculpture competition, incredible parties, and high aspirin consumption—all these are representative of Middlebury's most exciting and most remembered weekend.

"WRMC, the voice of Middlebury, 750 on your radio dial," features good music, news, and editorials eleven hours a day, six days a week. Its versatile staff produces regular broadcasts, as well as hockey and football games and special discussions. SOCCER

The 1963 soccer season was successful, yet, in some ways, disappointing. Coach Joe Morrone's team began the season with an impressive 5-1 victory over Dartmouth; but, unfortunately, it was not able to duplicate this initial performance. Middlebury's second game shattered any premature hopes for an undefeated season. A powerful Springfield squad outkicked and outthrustled the over-confident Panthers in handing them their first and sole defeat of the season. Four days later at Schenectady, N.Y., Keith Van Winkle led a second-half rally that resulted in a fine, come-from-behind 3-1 victory over Union.

The next two games proved to be particularly frustrating. Playing before a large Homecoming crowd, Middlebury battled M.I.T. to a 1-1 tie and lost sophomore Roger Herrmann via injury in the process. Herrmann's scoring punch (five goals in four games) was sorely missed in the disappointing Parents' Day tie with R.P.I.

Middlebury closed out its schedule with victories over St. Michael's, Coast Guard, and Norwich. Sophomore goalies Bayard Russ and Freeman Allen recorded shutouts to highlight the final two wins.

The 5-1-2 record clearly indicates, and perhaps belies, the talent of this year's soccer team. Keith Van Winkle should repeat as a first team All-American, and five Panthers were named to the All-Vermont team—Van Winkle, Herrmann, Ide, Heany, and Webb.

Looking ahead to next year, Coach Morrone will find nine starters returning, including this year's co-captain Mike Heaney. Although Van Winkle and five other dependable seniors will be missing, and their absence felt, co-captains elect Joby Stevens and Dick Ide will be leading the most experienced and most promising team in Middlebury's brief soccer history.

FOOTBALL

The 1963 football team was plagued by many crucial personnel losses, by a small sophomore group which did not provide the depth that is so necessary to successful teams, and by many heart-breaking defeats. The 2-5 record includes three defeats by one touchdown or less and two defeats by two touchdowns. In retrospect, it seems that all five defeats could have fallen on the other side of the ledger, if just one or two crucial variables had gone in Middlebury's direction. The long-standing Middlebury tradition of winning football teams finally had a year of comeuppance.

The Vermont State Series Title, which had been in Middlebury's possession for five years, went to an outstanding University of Vermont team. A Norwich team which had been beaten for two years running by the Panthers edged Middlebury 19-14 in a snowstorm, and the following weekend Vermont scored fourteen points in the second half to top the Panthers by a 14-0 score. It indeed seemed unusual to find Middlebury at the bottom of the state standings.

The season opened against a good Wesleyan squad under a blazing sun. Middlebury, which had attributed success in previous years to a powerful, methodical off-tackle play, was not able to get this yardage on the ground when it was most needed. Consequently, many touchdown drives stalled deep in Wesleyan territory when Middlebury fell inches short of a first down. The aroused Wesleyan team dropped the Panthers 12-0. The following weekend, Middlebury traveled to Worcester Tech and captured their first victory of the season, 20-6. In a convincing ground offensive, Dave Holmes broke the ice with a four yard run off tackle and Fred Beams and Jeff McKay scored touchdowns a little later. The Middlebury line, led by Don Elmore, Terry Fletcher, Jim Doane, Dave Hutchinson, and Gil Stanley, finally opened the holes that were non-existent the week before.

The perennial nemesis, Williams, visited Porter Field next and choked off the Panther attack with a 16-8 victory. The defense seemed lethargic and the offense sporadic in a disappointing loss. The following Saturday, Middlebury broke out of its slumber and charged all over Bates in the first half. Scoring a safety and a touchdown and missing three other scoring opportunities, Middlebury looked very good on a day punctuated by great heat. In the second half the heat, combined with injuries and lack of personnel depth, turned the initiative to Bates, and they proceeded to grind out two touchdowns to take a 14-9 lead. Late in the fourth period, Middlebury regrouped its forces and drove down the field through the Bates line until the ball rested on the nine yard line, fourth down and half a foot to go. Bates rose up and threw back this crucial thrust and Middlebury was forced to absorb another loss.

First down by Beams.

In a fine team effort, Middlebury took the measure of weak R.P.I. by a 32-0 score. It was the first and only afternoon of sustained success during the season. In the opening state series game, the Panthers traveled to Norwich to face a vastly improved cadet team. In the second period, behind 6-0, Middlebury executed its best touchdown drive of the year as a fighting line tore holes for the driving backs. Fred Beams scored the touchdown for the frenzied eleven, and Middlebury took a 7-6 lead. But the winning touchdown, so elusive throughout the season, failed to materialize as Norwich came from behind to win 19-14 in a bitter defeat for the Panthers.

A Vermont team, which was favored by as much as thirty points, came to muddy Porter Field to secure the State Title. A Middlebury team, hardened and embittered by defeat, smothered the vaunted Vermont offense and played the larger line to a standstill in a rough, tense first half. As the half ended, Captain Elmore lay injured and exhausted in the middle of the field. This was a bad omen. In the second half Vermont wore down the smaller, undermanned Panthers and finally scored a touchdown by a forward pass. Vermont scored again in the fourth period and the Panthers lost 14-0.

The 1963 season, like any other season, successful or unsuccessful, taught Middlebury football players a great deal about themselves and their teammates. The personal challenge on every play will perhaps remain unequalled in their lives. This team, which saw only intermittent success, was at its best at the end of the long season. The conflict and disciplined action of the game of football was always in evidence.

SKIING

With the loss of our two most outstanding performers, Gordie Eaton and John Bower, to the Olympics and through graduation, the outlook for the ski team was doubtful. However, at several times during the season, we showed more than promise of returning to the caliber of the National Championship runner-up team of 1961. During the early events of the winter coach Sheehan's boys showed they had exceptional strength and depth in the Alpine events. The domination of the Stowe Cup competition by Middlebury against the best skiers in the East especially brightened hopes for the upcoming carnival circuit.

At the Dartmouth carnival, the first meet in which the Middlebury team competed as a group, the Alpine specialists proved their capabilities. Through the efforts of Clough, Buchika, Ruschp, and Tauber, Middlebury gained a perfect score, sweeping both the downhill and the slalom events. The excellent showing in the Nordic events by senior Pete Swallow, winning the jumping competition, and sophomore Dennis Donahue, taking second place in the cross-country, was more than enough to bring Middlebury an overwhelming victory over our traditional rivals, the Indians of Dartmouth.

The following week, hosting our carnival, Middlebury handed Dartmouth another defeat by an even larger margin. Once again the Nordic team's success complemented an Alpine sweep, with sophomore Tom Easton taking top honors in the jumping event. Middlebury's hopes, however, were soon dimmed when Dartmouth retained its position as Eastern Champions at the Williams carnival. Due to miscalculation in waxing, Middlebury did not pick up needed points in the cross-country. This, combined with only a fair showing in the jumping, gave Dartmouth an easy win over the Middlebury team and a victory in the Eastern Championship competition.

Despite the loss at Williams and the subsequent poor showing in the National Championships at Franconia, New Hampshire, the Middlebury team showed more versatility and balance than it had in several years. The loss of Clough and Tauber in the Alpine events and Swallow in the Nordic will certainly be felt by next year's team. The great amount of ability that several sophomores showed this year, however, may be enough to keep Middlebury in strong contention for the Eastern Championships.

HOCKEY

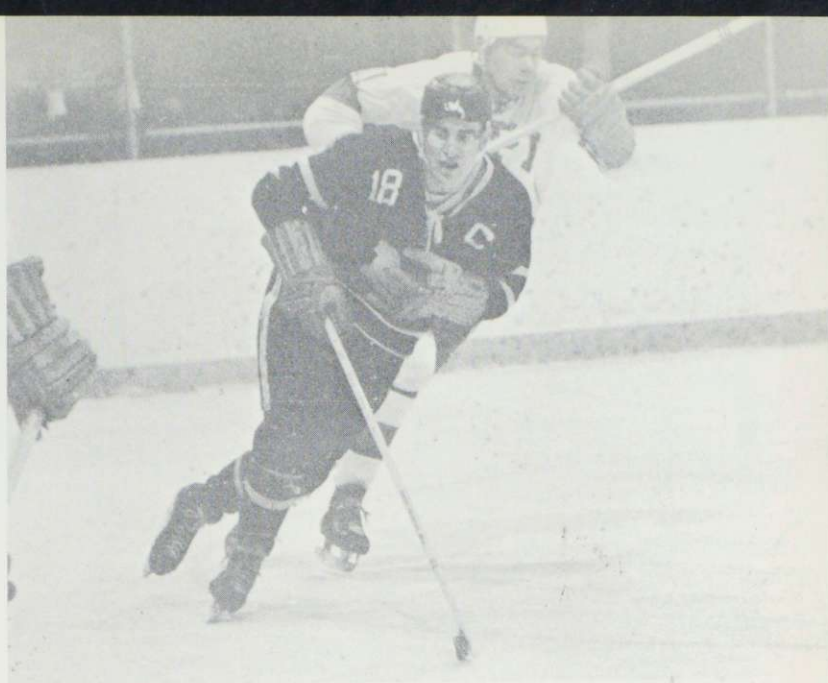

The 1963-1964 Middlebury hockey team had a disappointing season, compiling a 4-19 record. Plagued by a lack of depth and experience, the skaters failed to come up with a well-balanced scoring attack and a consistent defense. Without the services of All-American Dats Fryberger, Coach Duke Nelson was unable to build the squad into a winning team. Unfortunately, continual shifts in line units, defense pairings, and even goaltenders failed to achieve an effective combination.

Despite the poor showing there were a few bright spots and also signs of promise for next year as there will be few losses via the graduation route. Captain Roger Lewandowski, whose fine skating and scoring efforts led the Blues this year, will be sorely missed. Seniors Bob Dorf, who improved vastly over the season, and Dan Donaldson are the other losses.

Junior linemen Tim Carey and Dave Jensen showed scoring potential this year and should bolster the offensive punch next season. Defenseman Larry Leahy played some fine hard-nosed hockey on the backline for the Blues. The sophomore contingent, led by Wayne Halliwell, should improve vastly with a year of varsity competition under their belts. Halliwell's skating and scoring ability was a bright spot for the Panthers all year. Defensemen-linemen George Walker and Davis Webb and backliner Freeman Allen exhibited signs of great improvement during the season. The goal, which was a weak spot for the squad all year, will see the return of Ted Morse and Luke Dupuy and will gain with the addition of this year's fine frosh net-tender, Pete Brown.

Essentially the squad lacked a well-knit organization and unity. Three of the four wins came at the hands of Hamilton, U.-Mass. and Amherst. The one particularly gratifying victory for the team was a fine 6-5 overtime win over a good Bowdoin team at the Polar Bears' carnival. This was the big victory for the Panthers, and for the members of the team it marked a not completely unsuccessful season.

BASKETBALL

It was another long, cold winter for Middlebury basketball. Although the Panthers did win four games (marking a 400% improvement), the season was a particularly frustrating one. Coach Mackey's players, the most talented group in four years, could not play consistent basketball and found themselves on the short end of the close games. A lack of poise, of teamwork, of strategy or ability to carry out strategy, weighed heavily against this ill-fated team.

Yet, for the first time in recent years, Middlebury provided its hard-core of spectators with representative basketball. The dogfights with UVM and St. Lawrence, the Wesleyan nightmare, and the home-court wins over Norwich and Clarkson marked the high points of an exciting, if unsuccessful, season. Unfortunately, these brief flashes of good basketball do not appear to be indicative of the winters that loom ahead.

Missing next year will be Bill Dyson, Middlebury's best guard of recent years, and Cecil Forster, whose scoring spurts and consistent defense kept the team in contention in its better games. Co-captains elect Peter Karlson, Charlie Ladd, and Dick Ide may not be enough to stem the tide of Middlebury's basketball fortunes. Despite their poor record, we cling to the hope that the freshman team will, with experience, add depth to the varsity roster.

One of Middlebury's most active undergraduate legislative bodies is the Interfraternity Council. Composed of representatives from the ten campus fraternities, this group has the responsibility of maintaining the Greek system on a level complementary to other college organizations. Considering the rapid advances in college education over the past decades and the corresponding change in the role of fraternities, the task of the IFC has become increasingly vital. This year the Council has met its challenge with skillful competence.

The primary function of the Panhellenic Council is the coordination of the activities of the six sororities on campus. Besides helping the IFC with the Greek Dance, Panhell supervises the rush program and sponsors such events as a fashion show, an inter-sorority bridge tournament, and the Freshman Serenade. In addition to these projects, the Council considers the problems of individual sororities and evaluates and strengthens the Greek system at Middlebury.
